'SOON YOUNG PEOPLE WILL HAVE ONE LESS THING TO RELY ON'

Teenagers mobilise to defend their youth centres

By Henry Ellis

MORE than 300 teenagers from across Haringey have banded together to form a campaign group to save their youth clubs from the latest wave of public service cuts.

The architects of the Save Haringey's Youth Services campaign – a group of like-minded teenagers – have already celebrated their petition's 1,000th supporter but are eager for more to sign up.

The group, including members of the Bruce Grove Youth Centre, The Muswell Hill Youth Club and the Wood Green Youth Centre, have already taken their fight to the civic centre. They have held discussions with Haringey Council leader Claire Kober and are due to meet chief executive Kevin Crompton for crisis talks at an event called Word On The Street at the Bernie Grant Arts Centre in High Road, Tottenham, on Thursday. The cuts will be one of eight themes discussed on the night.

The group was scrambled following the announcement of cuts to youth services after Haringey Council was ordered to find £60million savings in the next year alone as the nation struggles to claw its way out of financial crisis.

Cordel Robinson, 19, helped launch the campaign after becoming a pivotal figure at the Bruce Grove Youth Centre in Tottenham, volunteering to oversee projects in drama, art and music production. He told the Advertiser: "These youth centres help the people in the area so much, whether it's finding out information, taking part in projects or just as somewhere for them to go and relax off the streets. Cutting the budget will make things so much harder for young people in the area. It will give them one less thing to rely on and make things worse."

Kyle Stewart, 25, a youth worker at the Wood Green Youth Centre in White Hart Lane, said losing the club would turf its hundreds of members on to the streets after school. He said: "I have been working here since I was 16. Even now if you take a look at the staff, many who were here a month ago are now gone. Things that were available, such as trips, are now not going to happen and we didn't even have enough money to enter our football team into the league this year."

"We're talking about hundreds of young people being left with nothing to do. This place helped me so much when I was growing up. It's such a slap in the face because it feels like we are being told, 'well you've done all this, but now we're going to close the door on you.'"

Councillor Lorna Reith, cabinet member for children and young people, said: "This petition demonstrates the strength of feeling among young people in Haringey, and their initiative is really commendable."

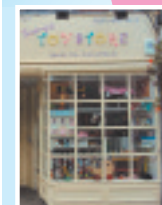

"Final decisions about funding in the light of the government's cuts have not yet been taken. However, the speed and depth of the cuts mean we are forced to look closely at every penny of expenditure, including youth provision."

"I meet regularly with local young people and members of the Haringey Youth Council to give them the chance to discuss their concerns. We would also urge all interested young people to take part in the Shaping Our Future survey, which offers everyone in Haringey the chance to say how they think the cuts should be managed." news.haringey@nlhnews.co.uk

Homes close to proposed Spurs ground under threat

By Lucy Purdy

FAMILIES living near the proposed new Spurs stadium could be forced from their homes as Haringey Council chiefs desperately seek a deal to keep the club in Tottenham.

Homes near the new stadium could be the subject of compulsory purchase orders if a report due to be discussed by the council's cabinet members last night is approved.

It outlines plans to allow the club to buy land and property within the Northumberland Development Project site if necessary. While Spurs already owns 85 per cent of the land surrounding the existing White Hart Lane stadium, a CPO would mean they could buy any other land deemed "essential" in allowing the multi-million-pound scheme to go ahead.

They are only granted in cases where the "economic, social or environmental wellbeing" of an area is likely to be improved.

The council has been working with

Spurs on plans for the huge new scheme, which will include a 56,250-capacity stadium, 200 homes, a supermarket, hotel, conferencing facilities and hundreds of new jobs. The project received unanimous backing from members of the council's planning committee back in September with council bosses envisaging "massive regeneration benefits" for the deprived part of Tottenham.

Speaking before the meeting took place last night, council leader, Claire Kober said: "We recognise the importance of keeping Spurs' rich heritage, history and future here in Haringey where it belongs, and the council is working hard to support Spurs with their proposals for the new stadium in Tottenham."

"We know that this multi-million-pound scheme will have far-reaching benefits, not just for everyone who lives and works in this very deprived part of Tottenham, but also for London as a whole. A CPO would allow the plans to progress."

Compulsory purchase orders will only be considered as a "last resort" when all negotiations have failed. They involve residents who have not given consent for their homes to be sold being forced to remove and receiving the market value of their home as well as compensation.

Bright future: Roman Pavlyuchenko celebrates scoring for Spurs

Owners or occupiers can challenge decisions in which case both sides would be heard by an independent inspector.

Meanwhile, Tottenham MP David Lammy has called upon London mayor Boris Johnson to give the scheme the green light after plans went to him for approval last week. Mr Lammy said: "I want Boris Johnson and Daniel Levy [Tottenham's chairman] to accept their responsibility to generations of Spurs fans and to the boarded-up shops and homes of Northumberland Park. And I want them to accept that Tottenham Hotspur is so-called for a reason - because it belongs in Tottenham."

"From Barnet to Waltham Forest, Enfield to Haringey, we look east and see the Olympic revival in Newham; we look west and see the revival at Wembley. We need Spurs to remain committed to north London and to their fans."

Children's play areas escape cuts

EIGHT schemes to build play areas in Haringey are to go ahead, despite the government imposing cuts of more than £200,000.

Projects at Down Lane Park, Sandlings Estate, Wood Green Common, Thefford Close, the Markfield Project, Ducketts Common, Carlton Lodge and Stationers Park will go ahead.

Three other schemes: Partridge Way Estate, Bailey Close and Stamford Close, have been put on hold.

The government was going to provide £603,000 for the 11 schemes, but the pot has now been slashed to £376,924.

Haringey Council is to contribute £275,000, with outside organisations providing another £136,000.

Councillor Dilek Dogus, cabinet member for adults and community services, said: "Despite government cuts, we've done our best to keep as many schemes as possible. The new play areas will be great for local families."

"We hope that the three schemes which have been put on hold will go ahead at some point in the next four years, but we will have to keep the situation under review."

Cemeteries up for sell-off in council's 'secret' proposals

By Lucy Purdy

A CONTROVERSIAL proposal to privatise the management of Haringey's cemeteries and a crematorium in order to save cash was due to be discussed at a meeting last night.

Haringey Council has been accused of "pushing through" proposals to lease cemeteries in Wolves Lane, Wood Green, and in White Hart Lane in Tottenham as well as its stake in Enfield Crematorium, in Great Cambridge Road, without consulting families who will be affected.

The plan was first mooted in the summer but deferred after concerns were raised about the speed and "secrecy" with which it came about.

Joseph Nicholas, of the Tottenham Civic Society, penned a letter of objection to council leader Claire Kober and cabinet member for adult and community services councillor Dilek Dogus.

He wrote: "It would appear from the available papers that the proposal is being pushed through without consultation with the inhabitants of Tottenham, without giving them the opportunity to scrutinise and challenge the appraisals and calculations on which the proposal is based, and without publishing the options documents and consultants' reports."

"The council first tried to dispose of Tottenham Cemetery in July but was forced to suspend such action following adverse publicity in the local press. It would appear that the same secrecy which attended that earlier proposal attends this second equally controversial attempt at disposal of a sensitive public service."

In June, the Advertiser revealed all three of the cemeteries had reached capacity, meaning grieving relatives hoping to lay their loved ones to rest in Haringey will need to look elsewhere.

A council spokesman said: "We are not proposing to change any of the sites, nor how they operate. Our aim is to ensure that the current service is at least maintained. A full and detailed set of reports are publicly available on the council's website. There is nothing secret about our approach to this specific decision. It is normal practice for commercial issues to be considered in the exempt part of council meetings. This is particularly important when negotiating commercial deals."

Barking dogs' owners fined

A COUPLE from Muswell Hill whose barking dogs disturbed neighbours have been forced to pay a record £1,100 in fines after a court hearing last week.

Dozgun and Gonel Tel, of Beattock Rise, were found guilty of breaching a noise abatement notice on August 31. Residents had complained to Haringey Council's enforcement response noise team about the barking.

Councillor Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for neighbourhoods, said: "I hope this case alerts people to the need to be considerate to their neighbours, especially if their dog is prone to barking. It is up to pet owners to act responsibly and to tend to their barking dog and take it inside if necessary."

Smuggled loot seized in raid

AROUND 12,000 cigarettes, two cars and more than £20,000 in cash have been seized from a house and a business premises in Haringey.

Three and a half kilos of hand-rolling tobacco were also found by HM Revenue & Customs officers who discovered that both addresses were being used to sell cigarettes and tobacco which had been smuggled into the UK.

The revenue loss in unpaid duty on the cigarettes and hand-rolling tobacco seized is estimated at about £6,000.

Three people have been arrested and released on bail until January 2011. Investigations are ongoing.

Streets filled as war dead remembered with respect

Leading from the front: Scouts joined the procession to honour the war dead

CROWDS turned out to line the streets of Haringey on Sunday to remember the borough's fallen war heroes on Remembrance Sunday.

Services took place in Wood Green, Tottenham and Hornsey to commemorate Britain's war dead in keeping with events up and down the country. The mayor of Haringey, councillor Eddie Griffith, joined a service at Wood Green War Memorial, in High Road, and another poignant ceremony took place at Tottenham War Memorial in Town Hall Approach Road.

The Middlesex Regiment Association and cadets from Hornsey held a wreath-laying service at the war memorial at Hornsey Health Centre, in Park Road, followed by a service at the St Mary With St George Church in Cranley Gardens.

The mayor said: "We owe an enormous debt of gratitude to the men and women who lost their lives defending this country. These ceremonies are our tribute to those who made the ultimate sacrifice."

Time for reflection: The Mayor of Haringey, Eddie Griffith, paid his respects at the Wood Green War Memorial

Turning all our household waste into 'green gold'

WHERE there's muck there's brass. Never has the saying been more true than when looking out across the vast expanse of Edmonton's field of "green gold".

It is to this vast warehouse, in Ardra Road, off Meridian Way, that all of Haringey's recycling is sent when it leaves residents' doorsteps. And it is here – after being sorted with the help of a £10million machine and the keen eyes and nimble fingers of workers – that it is turned from household waste into a commodity that can be sold on and recycled.

The scale of the facility, which first started work in May, is huge. Piled high at the entrance are thousands of tons of loose comingled recycling, waiting to be fed into the beating heart of the operation – the Materials Recovery Facility.

The MRF, or "murf" as it known by workers, eventually spits out the separated materials, which are then bailed up and pushed to the sides of the building. This end-product, or "green gold", is now ready to be sold on to the highest bidder.

The magical transformation in this waste, from something which most people would happily send to landfill ten years ago, to a product which has true value – both monetarily and environmentally – is astonishing.

Every day it churns through 400 tons and according to Steve Oulds, divisional commercial manager at the site, the company has room to expand as recycling rates rocket.

Recycling can be dealt with in two different ways – it is either separated at source, where dustmen sort through the waste, or it is picked up all mixed together and sent to a MRF.

"I prefer co-mingled collections to source segregated, but obviously I'm biased," said Steve. "It is quicker, less polluting to the environment as there's no truck pulling up with the engine idling. It's also one vehicle and is more cost effective and participation also goes up."

But co-mingled recycling, although easier for residents and dustmen, does require a complex a piece of kit as the MRF.

After the recycling is dumped on the floor

By Nick Tarver

by the truck it is first checked for quality to make sure non-recyclables such as food do not get through. If non-recyclables are found it is the council's responsibility to collect them at its own cost.

Steve said sometimes more unusual items are sent to them to recycle. "We've had things such as sex toys but one of the problems is that we also get sharps [medical refuse such as needles]," he said.

"In another MRF I have seen an ornamental sword and even a lawnmower.

"One of the infuriating problems of cross contamination are things such as plastic bottles being stuffed inside cereal boxes, as both are good for recycling but our machine can't separate them."

After the visual check, the waste is scooped up and fed into the machine where it travels along conveyor belts. The material is sifted out using special screens on the basis of items being divided up into "flat or round things".

The first material to be sorted is card as it is flat and thicker than paper. The waste then travels on and newspaper is taken out using a different sized screen.

Steel cans are collected next with the help of a magnet and then an eddy separator takes care of the aluminium ones.

Glass is then taken out after going across a screen, which breaks it up to allow it to drop through a grate. Lastly it's plastic, which has to be separated according to six different grades and bailed up separately.

"This is all sold on to the highest bidder," said Steve. "It could go to different mills within the UK but a lot of it goes to China.

"The irony is that although it may seem a long way, there are so many container ships coming to England from China and unloading their cargo that they need something to take back. So we sell in a global market."

Badge of honour:
Fiona Mitchell, Dennis Venables, Paul Denny and Matthew Denny

By Lucy Purdy

YOUNG people from Wood Green will get the chance to learn cooking, crafts and even camping skills in a new group designed to keep them off the streets.

A new branch of the Boys' Brigade, which takes boys and girls between the ages of eight and 18, has been set up at Christ Church with St Peter in Waldeck Road and organisers are on the lookout for new members.

Company Captain Matthew Denny, who lives in nearby Seven Sisters, told the Advertiser why he had "jumped at the chance" to set up the 1st Haringey Company of the Boys' Brigade and Girls' Association.

"We were talking to a local beat officer who was saying there was a real need for something in the area for kids to go to. We've all been in the Boys' Brigade for all of our lives and when he said they were screaming out for something, we jumped at the chance.

"We're trying to get support from local businesses and they have actually been very good.

"Shopkeepers around Wood Green would also like to see something which takes young people off the streets and doing something worthwhile.

"We have a structured badge system so the young people can actually work toward something and achieve something, and take part in competitions such as swimming galas. They learn basic cooking skills from Dennis Venables, our warrant officer, who is a qualified chef.

"I've been in the brigade since I was six and I've learned so many new skills. Just to see smiles on the youngsters' faces when they earn their badges and actually achieve something. It is so rewarding, I can't describe that feeling."

As well as new members, Mr Denny would like to hear from anyone willing to donate equipment for the group, such as games, arts and crafts materials or musical instruments.

Haringey's only other Boys' Brigade group is based in Tottenham and is now full to capacity, having been running for 27 years.

The new group meets from 4-6pm on Sundays and it costs £13 per term to join.

IN VICTORIAN times you didn't go to the football, or the cinema, you most probably you went to the freak show.

Popularised by the celebrated American showman, P.T. Barnum, they mostly consisted of hybrid animals (infamously a fish's tail was sewn onto the body of a monkey for the Fiji Mermaid) or people with everyday deformities. "So they'd have dwarves or hunchbacks and tell their audiences their disability occurred as a result of some vice," said Alex Parsonage. "They'd market these shows as some kind of moral exhibition. In reality they were completely voyeuristic."

Celebrating the oddity of this Victorian curiosity, Alex and his cabaret company Finger In The Pie have devised a show with music hall entertainers Tiny Wallop called The Travelling Freakarium starring, "A menagerie of freaks, monstrosities and marvels of nature".

"There will be lots of music and opportunities for the audience to join in while each freak will have a mysterious tale to tell," said Alex. "Like the entertainment of yesteryear it's partly about playing on people's expectations. Showmen like Barnum would hype their audiences up to such an extent that the actual freak was almost secondary and by that point they could have been shown anything."

● The Travelling Freakarium is being staged at Jacksons Lane in Archway Road, Highgate, next Friday and Saturday at 8.30pm. Tickets cost £15.50. For more details and reservations call the box office on 020 8341 4421.

Out and about

● NEW theatre is welcomed into Highgate this week. Creative Producers Collective takes over Upstairs at the Gatehouse with a double bill of contemporary dance from tonight at 9pm; a play about an erotic love triangle called Little Deaths on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 7.30pm; and a twist on Snow White on Sunday at 4pm. Tickets for each are £12 (£10 concessions). For more details call 020 8340 3488.

● THE Millfield's annual seasonal spectacular opens in Edmonton next week. Jack And The Beanstalk is the vintage slice of panto cheese opening next Thursday and running until January 2. Millfield favourite Neal Wright returns as the dame alongside all the traditional festive ingredients. Tickets, £10 to £17. For more details and reservations call the venue in Silver Street on 020 8807 6680.

● EGBERT The Space Explorer is the great name for a children's show this Saturday. Kids aged two to six can join Egbert as he heads off on a space adventure in a rocket made of balloons to see if the moon really is made of cheese. It takes place at Lauderdale House in Highgate Hill at 10am and 11.30am. Tickets £4.50 (£3 concs). Call the box office on 020 8348 8716.

Get your skates on to win a magical trip

Prize celebrates launch of ice rink with a difference for family fun

FAMILIES can give chilly temperatures the slip thanks to the launch of an unusual ice rink.

Willows Farm Village near St Albans opens its Christmas attractions next Wednesday, including a traditional-looking rink made of synthetic ice to keep children warm and dry. Good little boys and girls will also be treated to a new journey up to Santa's Grotto.

Willows farmer Anna Wolfe said: "Christmas is always a wonderful time of year and it's even more exciting with the unveiling of the new Willows Magical Ice Rink. Once excited children have burnt off their extra energy skating, they can stop off at the Elves' House to write a letter to Santa, then say hello to the reindeer who are resting at Willows in preparation for their big night.

"Letters written and posted in Willows' Christmas postbox before December 14 will get a reply from Santa!"

Willows has created an exciting new journey up to Santa's Grotto with sparkling scenes, including tin soldiers, a gingerbread house, a St Bernard dog in the snow and animated seals and penguins. Once at the Grotto, children can share their highlights from this year with Santa and talk about what they would like for Christmas. Each child will be given a golden key to unlock the door to his toy shop where they can pick a present of their choice.

Anna added: "Santa will be at Willows from November 24 up to Christmas Eve. He'll want a go at skating but he'll have to wait until he has seen all the children!"

✳ To win a family ticket (two adults and two children) to Willows Farm Village, just tell us the name of the rink. Email your answer, with your name and contact details, to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk before Monday.

Harry Potter And The Death Hallows Part One (12A)

Dir: David Yates

Starring: Daniel Radcliffe, Emma Watson, Rupert Grint

THE latest instalment of the Harry Potter series is much darker than when we first met the young wizards entering Hogwarts with their shiny new wands.

"He who must not be named" is omnipresent, no longer a spirit which leeches on to other human beings, now he has gathered an army and is looking for a way to destroy "the boy who lived".

Tensions are high from the start in what proves to be an action-packed two and half hours. After a little help from their allies in the Order Of The Phoenix, Hermione Granger, Ron Weasley and Harry Potter are left to fend for themselves.

This penultimate film sees the trio of magicians flitting around searching for and destroying the Horcruxes, the secret to Voldemort's immortality - which has an effect on its owner remarkably similar to Frodo's rings. Meanwhile the young wizards discover a power source for the Dark Lord through the legend of the Deathly Hallows.

Thankfully we move away from the comfortable Hogwarts and earlier formulaic movies centred around the school year. The portrayal of Voldemort's army of Death Eaters and foot soldiers hunting Potter, while eliminating muggles and mudbloods (half human/half magician) has a striking resemblance to World War II's ethnic cleansing and propaganda.

There are some tear-jerkers, such as Harry's visit to his parents' grave, but the romantic scenes ruin the magical edge. Thank goodness Harry's kiss with Ron's sister Ginny was interrupted by one of the humourous twins walking in with a toothbrush in his ear! And the love triangle between Hermione, Ron and Harry only adds to the film's unnecessary length.

Hermione takes centre-stage, preparing for the trio's trek with her enchanted handbag stocking everything from a huge tent to healing potions - very Mary Poppins - and she is Harry's bodyguard despite being a mudblood, a target herself.

If you're a die-hard fan, you will not want to miss this, but if you are a bit more casual about these young magicians, you may come away feeling this was an over-indulgence. Perhaps we could have had a Titanic-length finale, rather than a mediocre two-part conclusion.

Another Year (12A)

Mike Leigh returns to form with this compassionate, quietly devastating slice of London life. Divided into four seasons over one year, we follow couple, Gerri and Tom, who provide a form of refuge for lonely friends.

Due Date (15)

Odd couple road trip made by the funny man who brought us The Hangover, it features Robert Downey Jr and Zach Galifianakis driving from Atlantic City to LA with far-fetched yet funny results.

Engaging, witty portrait of middle-aged lesbian parents in California whose cosy, existence is shaken when their teenage daughters go in search of their biological father.

Despicable Me (U)

Fun animation as the world's biggest super-villain tries to hold on to his crown in the face of even more evil upstarts. Plenty of gags for children and adults.

The Social Network (12A)

Charting Facebook's rise from Harvard geek project to corporate behemoth this slick drama even manages to make computer programming exciting.

ANGELS DOES CHARITY EVENT

Local Sales & letting agency Angels organised a fitness Zumba charity event in aid of Children in Need.

The event took place at Brimsdown Sports Club on Wednesday 10th Nov. The Charity event lasted 2 hours with participation from landlords, tenants and the general public.

It was a great success with everyone enjoying themselves. They raised donations in many different ways, from landlords, tenants, donation box, raffles and entry fees for the event. They managed to raise a whopping figure of £1000 towards Children In Need.

There were prizes such as bottles of Champagne, Zorbing tickets and a free letting service from Angels as 1st prize.

The event was organised and run by the staff at Angels which made it a great success for the company.

The Agency has been selected to appear on TV on Children in Need on Friday 19th at 8:45 by the BBC for their success in the event. They will hopefully be performing a Zumba performance on tv.

The class was lead by Letty Rifat, Daniela Kalakovic & Sofie Hooper. The event had a lot of positive feedback and has encouraged the staff to run their own Zumba classes in the New Year where donations from the classes will be donated to charity on a regular basis.

Managing Director Prem Singh says "Charity events like these are very rewarding in many ways, the staff teamwork was amazing as the staff done a lot of work and training outside working hours, the support from landlords, tenants & general public, and of course the money raised to help the unfortunate people in third world countries which is the most rewarding part of the event"

Angels will be doing more Charitable events in the future as well as the Zumba fitness classes.

Anyone interested in attending the fitness classes in the early New Year please email letty@angelshomes.co.uk

CROUCH EYES DERBY GLORY

By Lee Husson

TOTTENHAM striker Peter Crouch is confident he can fire Spurs to derby victory on Saturday as Harry Redknapp's men gear up to face bitter rivals Arsenal.

Crouch scored Tottenham's third in a comprehensive 4-2 win over Blackburn Rovers at White Hart Lane last weekend, with two goals from Gareth Bale and another from Roman Pavlyuchenko helping Spurs on their way to a first league win in five matches.

Crouch pounced on a defensive mistake from Rovers' Gael Givet for his first league goal this term, although he has chalked up five goals in Europe so far.

"I have scored six goals this season and I have been part of another five maybe," he said.

"Everyone loves scoring, and I am no different. When you are a striker you get judged on that.

"I have been scoring in the Champions League and my last goal was against Inter Milan – which was only a few games ago.

"So, yes, I feel confident that I will score goals and it was pleasing to get one against Blackburn.

"I have been pleased with my performances and the manager would not play me if he did not think I was having an impact."

Up next for Harry Redknapp's side is the north London derby at the Emirates Stadium, and Crouch is eager to avenge the 4-1 defeat at the hands of the Gunners in the Carling Cup earlier in the season.

"We are looking forward to the game at Arsenal," he said. "We are not there yet, but we are certainly a lot closer to them than we have been for a long time.

"They are a top-quality side with a lot of young players. We changed our side around in the Carling Cup when Arsenal won 4-1 but they were fantastic.

"We know that they are a great side but I believe that on our day we can beat anyone.

"If you really want to have a proper impact on the league you have to go to places like Arsenal and pick up points. We have a lot of talent to do that."

Skolars make key signings ahead of new rugby league season

LONDON SKOLARS have revealed that they have re-signed four key players from last year's squad ahead of the new season.

As new head coach Joe Mbu begins to put his side through their paces at pre-season training, 29-year-old Wales international Matt Thomas has confirmed that he will be back for next season, along with Tom Williams, who missed much of the second half of 2010 due to injury.

The 26-year-old prop forward returns for his fourth season with the club, and will link up with new signing Jason Hart, the former Leeds Met University and Hunslet prop who agreed terms last week.

Also re-signing is 29 year old Olu Iwenofu, the former London Bronco winger, and second row Oliver Bloom, 24, who started his playing career with Gloucestershire Warriors.

Both return for a third season at New River, much to the delight of coach Mbu, who also revealed several more signings will be made over the coming weeks.

"Several more signings will be made shortly, but I'm delighted to have these experienced players back with us next season," he said.

"The club has often made progress over the latter half of the season, only to have to rebuild again the following year. We need to build on the experience we have and add to the squad in key areas. Jason Hart will certainly add to the power up front for us next season."
